

Camp.

Last week, I went to Guejar Sierra for a language immersion. I shared room with Rocío Sánchez; it was really funny. The first day we ate there. Then we did lots of activities and at night we had a “welcome party”, I danced a lot with Alexandra.

Next day we went for a trip to a lake, the views were beautiful. Then we walked up. While we walked up my teacher and I had a philosophical talk about the future and life after death. At night we had another party but we were really tired because in the afternoon we did sports activities too.

The last day we had sports activities and “The Olimpic Games”, where my team, “The legbreakers”, won.

When we came back, Rocío puked on the bus. It was disgusting! I could see that fideua.

The camp was very nice, I liked the meals, the activities, the teachers, everything! I would like to go again.

By: Lara E. Lorente Serrano.

